The Limited License to Instruct: An Accelerated Route to Teacher Certification

This project is designed to provide certificated instructional personnel in all of the classrooms of the Detroit Public Schools. The focus of the project will be to support up to 700 non-certified classroom teachers and other individuals making a mid-career change participating in a pilot program as an accelerated route to teacher certification. Through a collaborative effort with the Detroit Public Schools, Michigan Department of Education and Wayne State University participants in this cycle will be enrolled in a bilingual teacher preparation program leading toward the awarding of a masters degree and a recommendation for certification. This program is intended to address the districts critical need for bilingual teachers to instruct a growing population of non-English speaking students.

This project will serve as a model for statewide replication by other institutions of higher education. The Wayne State University faculty will provide technical assistance to two other districts working in conjunction with identified Michigan colleges and universities to address the need for certified instructional staff to teach the students.
